She listens to them for a few minutes and then announce to them that today is going to be special. We are going to imagine that it is a day from the month of Ramadan and we are going to pretend to do everything we do in Ramadan. She takes them to a big room in the school such as the theater or the media room where she prepared everything ahead.

She can follow similar steps: (it will be a wonderful experience for the kids, they will really enjoy it and never forget it )

She turns off the lights and tells them to put their heads down as if they are sleeping. After a minutes the Tabbal / the teacher plays the role of a mother waking her children up for suhoor. The kids wake up and she pretends to be their mother where she distributes for them plates of sohoor (mini sandwiches) and glasses of milk. She tells them to hurry up because the Athan for Fajr is very close. They finish eating, they pretend to brush their teeth and make Wudu". When done the teacher says the athan: Allah Akbar Allah Akbar.... She informs them that from now until the sunset Athan/ Maghrib time, they cannot eat or drink. They pretend to do various activity, when it is time for the Zohor prayer, she says the Azan, they pretend to perform Wudu" and pray, same for Asr. When the time for Maghrib is close, she distribute for them plates with dates, water, milk and tell to make dhikr, tasbeeh, istighfar while waiting for the Athan. She tells them that there is a great gift for them form Allah which is the acceptance of their Du`aa' by Allah عَزَّ وَجَلَّ . Time for Maghrib, they break their iftar, say the Du`aa' (She can project any Du`aa or any information mentioned in the textbook. pretend to make Wudu" and pray the Maghrib. She informs them about the Taraweeh. Finally they pretend that the whole month is passed and now it is time to celebrate `Eed. She brings in the ready balloons and decoration for the `Eed, give them small gifts , celebrate and be happy.
